Plans All Set For Repatriation

Complete plans have been made for the repatriation of this country's 328,000 World War II deceased military and naval personnel buried outside the continental United States, and the Army and Navy will write the next of kin to obtain instructions for distribution of the bodies. Under the law families will have the option of:

1. Having the remains returned to the United States for final interment in a National Cemetery near their home at government expense.
2. Returning the remains for burial by next of kin in a private cemetery. The government will bear all costs of shipping the body home and pay $50 toward the local burial expense.
3. Burying in a permanent military cemetery overseas.

The War Department asks next of kin of men buried overseas who have changed their address since being notified of the death to write now and give their correct address.

Caskets will be available this fall and the first shipment of war dead is expected at the end of the year. It is estimated that the bodies will arrive in the United States beginning next year at the initial rate of 1,200 a month, increasing to about 18,000 monthly by the end of 1947. The total cost is estimated at from $95 to $215 million dollars, or about $700 per man.

Remains of the deceased soldiers and sailors will be in special funeral vessels. They will be painted white with a wide purple band circling the ship. Upon arrival the flag-draped seamless steel caskets will be transferred under military escort to 13 redistribution points in special funeral trains composed of converted hospital coaches. The bodies will then be forwarded to the places of burial.

Next of kin desiring any further information on the government's plan of repatriating the war dead may consult any American Legion or service officer. These officers have been furnished with full details of the whole project.

Kelly Campaign Swings Into High

The intensive campaign conducted by Raymond J. Kelly, Republican candidate for Governor, has swung into high gear. Kelly, a former state legislator and a political expert, is well known to his opponents. When he began his campaign late in April he was more or less ignored by his opponents and not given much chance for success on June 19. Within the last few days the picture has changed.

Following a couple tours thru the Upper Peninsula, Mr. Kelly was given by political writers a better than even chance to take that section of the state. He then began appearances in the western and northern part of the lower peninsula, and the story has been the same.

Mr. Kelly's vigorous attacks on the Michigan Liquor Control Commission and the Michigan Conservation Commission, his earnest plea for justice for the veterans and the payment of a cash bonus, his plan to give more state aid to the local governmental units including the school districts and his pledge to increase the allotments to the aged have won thousands of votes.

His recent radio speeches denouncing "machine politics" have brought to his headquarters at 414 Ford Building in Detroit, hundreds of letters of commendation.

The final week of the campaign will be spent by Mr. Kelly in and near Detroit. On Sunday, June 9, he enjoyed a reunion with his wife and six children for the first time since the war started. Mr. Kelly left at that time for the Army. When Mr. Kelly was discharged from the Army this spring his son was still a student at Annapolis. The son was home Sunday on a short leave.

ANNAPOLIS GRAD KNOWN HERE

Midshipman Robert E. Creque, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Creque of Flint and Lake Margrethe, is a member of the U. S. Naval Academy (Annapolis) graduating class of 1946. He attended Flint Central High School and Flint Junior College before being appointed to the Naval Academy. At the Academy he received class honors in soccer, military track and lacrosse and participated in Company light football and was a member of the Spanish Club. Young Creque held the rank of Midshipman first petty officer in the Brigade organization. After graduating June 5, he was commissioned an Ensign. He left immediately for a month's flying training at Jacksonville, Florida. He expects to be home with his parents during the month of July and on August 7 is to report to San Francisco for Pacific duty on a mine-sweeper.

Mr. and Mrs. Creque, son Richard and daughter Carrie Marie attended the graduation exercises.

Name Flight Officers To Air Corp Reserve

The Saginaw Military District has been informed that appointments in the Air Corps Reserve are now available for former Flight Officers of the Army of the United States.

The new directive, in part, reads: "Any person who has completed an aviation cadet course of training as an aviation cadet, or has completed an aviation student course of training, under the provisions of AR 615-150 as an enlisted man, and has served in time of war as a commissioned officer or flight officer in the Army of the United States, may be appointed an officer in the Air Corps Reserve upon recommendation of the Commanding General, Army Air Forces."

Individuals so recommended will be commissioned in the Air Corps Reserve in such manner as is prescribed by the Adjutant General."

Flight officers who desire a reserve commission may secure their application for appointment for 2nd Lieutenant, Air Reserve, by contacting the Saginaw Military District, 213 Goff Building, Saginaw, Michigan. Phone 3-5416.

Prior hereto no provisions had authorized the granting of reserve commissions to Flight Officers.

DO NOT PICKUP LONE FAWNS

"No orphans but kidnap victims are the fawns picked up by motorists and fishermen," declared Clarence Roberts as he told five fawns being brought in by people who thought the little fellows were separated from their mothers.

Legal penalties are provided for each misdirected "kindness," the officer explained, and warned that fawns should not be touched unless the mother has been seriously hurt or killed or the fawn is in danger, having fallen into the river or something of the nature.

When the fawns are brought in they must be transported to the Ogemaw Game Refuge, and the doe may suffer serious consequences as the result of "fawn-napping," such as a hardening of the udder.

George Higgins of Ovid was assessed a $5 fine and costs of $5.00 last week-end when he entered a plea of guilty to opening the bass season a little earlier than is legal. Roy Gillman of Romulus and Walter Smith of Roscommon pleaded guilty to a charge of having set lines in the South Branch late last week. Both were fined $5 and $5.00 costs. All three game law violators were arrested by Officer Roberts and appeared before Justice Emil Giegling.

ACE LENG SELLS FREDERIC STORE

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lozon of Frederic purchased the Leng Store at Frederic from Mr. and Mrs. Ace Leng as of Tuesday, June 4.

Mr. Lozon has been employed at the store by Mr. Leng for over 15 years. The Lengs have operated the Frederic market for over 21 years, beginning with a small general store. The building was greatly enlarged during the time of the Lozons and is a modern, up-to-date meat department added.

Mr. and Mrs. Lozon will appreciate the continued business of old customers and look forward to serving a new group of clients as well.

Pre-School Clinic To Be Held Here

Dr. L. K. Peck, M.D., Director of District Health Dept. No. 1, will be at the Grayling High School every Wednesday, beginning June 12, through July 10. Hours have been set as 10 to 12 a. m. and 1 to 3 p. m.

Immunization for diphtheria and whooping cough, and vaccination for smallpox will be given. If your child has not been immunized against these diseases, you are urged to have your family physician do so or bring them to the clinic.

Cemetery Notes

Grayling Township Board has mailed a check of $400. This is the third contribution they have made since we started rebuilding our cemeteries, and is appreciated far more than we can express in mere words and is a great source of encouragement to the Cemetery Committee and to our Superintendent, Mr. Otis Cook.

We have had many visitors from out of town the past week, and all left orders for the upkeep of their lots for the summer of 1946. We have also received a-

MICHIGAN BEAUTY AND BEAST

All dolled up—Michigan's 1946 Dairy Queen, pretty Retha Badger of Beaverdam, champion girl cow milker at Michigan State college, and the college dairy cow which cooperated with her in producing 11.7 pounds of milk in 11 minutes and 20 seconds. The judges were so pleased they bedecked garlands of flowers on both Retha and the cow. Sponsoring organizations were the American Dairy Association of Michigan, the Milk Producers Association, the Michigan Dairy Industry Committee and the State Department of Agriculture. The 1946 income of the Michigan dairy industry was $200,000,000.

GRAYLING BALL CLUB TO MEET COMINS NINE AT COMINS SUNDAY

Two Grayling High Graduates Enlist

The Traverse City Army Recruiting Station announced Tuesday that two 1946 Grayling High School graduates, Dale L. Burns, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl R. Burns, and Richard L. Nelson, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Nelson, had enlisted for 18 months. Both young men took advantage of the new regular Army's short period enlistment.

The Recruiting Station also announced that a United States Army Air Force caravan will be at Clinch Park on June 19 and 20 with an exhibit of the latest Air Corps equipment. Soldiers will accompany the Caravan to answer any and all questions, the station said. They also pointed out that it would be a splendid opportunity for young men, especially high school graduates, to see what the Air Corps has in store for a man interested in aeronautics.

Conservation School Schedule All Set

Officers of Michigan United Conservation Clubs announce all plans are now complete for the Second Annual Michigan Boys' Conservation Camp, to be held at the Training School of the Conservation Department on Higgins Lake. Five weeks of camps in July and August will be held and affiliated clubs of MUCC will send their boys on all expense paid by the clubs.

The boys will arrive on Monday of each week and leave on the following Saturday. Each day, from the first bell at 8 a. m. until the "lights out" at 10 p. m., will find the 70 boys engaged in a planned program covering instructions, classes and field trips, in woodcraft, safety, fire prevention, game management, fish food and habitat, land use, deer census and other related features.

Instructions in archery, canoe handling, fly tying and casting, as well as a daily session on the rifle range under NRA regulations and a very thorough instruction covering type of clothing to wear in the woods, compass reading, care and use of maps are included.

The boys are divided into four groups each week and they compete by recorded daily marks on camp chores, care of dormitory, rifle range, archery and other competitive features of the program. A daily baseball schedule of the four teams, swimming periods and other entertainment is provided throughout to make the week, although highly instructive, also very pleasant. Each day is ended with review of the day's activity, group singing, pep talks and motion pictures.

The entire program is under the supervision of Russell J. Martin, Superintendent of the Training School, and a staff of trained supervisors. The Grayling Sportsmen's Club is sending two boys to the camp with all expenses paid.

Following their defeat last Sunday at the hands of the unbeaten Roscommon club by a 14 to 8 score, the Grayling Independent baseball team is scheduled to meet Comins there, Sunday.

Other league games will see Gaylord at Roscommon for the top game of the day, as neither team has tested defeat. Fairview at Lewiston, and Atlanta at Mio.

The old bugaboo of errors soundly spanked the Grayling club as they met their traditional rival, Roscommon, on the local diamond last Sunday. A practice game is planned for this evening at the City-Park field, with the Independents meeting the Old-Timers.

In all, 14 errors were committed during the Sunday fracas, 7 by each team, but Grayling's errors were committed when they hurt a little bit more.

Get 11 Hits

The local club collected 11 hits with Smock, Chalker, Bob Hanson and Gildner each connecting twice. The Roscommon club hit 12 safeties with shortstop Knapp getting 5. Emery, the Roscommon pitcher, got 3, and Ostling, second-baseman, 2.

Gene Kaiser started on the hill for Grayling and was relieved in the fifth frame by Gildner. The Roscommon hurler went the entire distance.

Grayling's starting lineup included: Don Smock cf, Ross Thompson c and Ed Lew Stullwag lb, Bud Caia 2b, Ed Chalker ss, Bob Hanson 3b, George Hanson rf, E. Kellogg c, Gene Kaiser p. Gildner replaced Kaiser on the mound and Bob LaChappelle went in at left field. Ed Carlson went in at right field in the 7th inning.

Results of the other league games played last Sunday were: Gaylord 16, Comins 0, at Gaylord; Atlanta 21, Lewiston 1, at Atlanta; Mio 6, Fairview 5, at Fairview.

A meeting of all the team managers and league umpires is scheduled for 8 o'clock next Monday evening at the Grayling High School. All members and umpires are urged to be present at this important gathering.

Charles E. Moore, Prosecuting Attorney, spoke at the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis Club at Shoppemans on Wednesday noon. He took as his subject, "Land Titles and Their History". Mr. Moore traced the history of land titles from their earliest recording when man first attempted to write. Land titles were recorded on stone tablets. Many of these tablets are still to be found in museums and are very similar to present day titles in wording, he said.

Rather Heavy Primary Vote Is Forecast

Some Contests Hot; Others No Race

A rather heavy vote is forecast in Crawford County for next Tuesday at the Spring Primaries when voters will choose both GOP and Democratic candidates for Governor, Lieutenant Governor, United States Senator and Congressman, Prosecuting Attorney, Sheriff, County Clerk, and delegates to County Conventions. Candidates for State Senator and Representative will be only on the Republican ticket, as will also be candidates for Register of Deeds and Coroner. The office of County Treasurer is sought by a lone Democrat. There was no candidate for County Clerk on the Democratic ticket until last week-end, when Clayton McDonnell announced he would seek the Democratic nomination on write-ins.

Big Battle

The big battle seems to be brewing for the Republican nomination for Governor, with Vernon J. Brown, Edward J. Jeffries, Raymond J. Kelly and Kim Sigler fighting it out for the nod. The winner of the nomination will meet the winner of the Murray D. (Pat) Van Wagoner - William Cody tiff for the Dem nomination.

Osmund Kelly, former Mayor of Flint, is the lone Democrat seeking the nomination for Lieutenant Governor, while four Republicans aspire to the office. They are: Owen J. Cleary, Howard Nugent, Eugene C. Keyes and George N. Higgins.

Nationally, the present Michigan senior Senator, Arthur H. Vandenberg, is on the Republican ticket, while James H. Lee is seeking the Democratic nod. The present Representative, Roy O. Woodruff, faces David A. Ballard Sr. on the Republican ticket. Herman N. Butler is the only Democratic seeker for the Congress seat for the 10th District.

Peltz Unopposed

Emil A. Peltz, the present State Representative, from Rogers City, is unopposed on either ticket in the GOP race for Congress. Charles T. Prescott of East Tawas and Prescott, and J. Stuart Bicknell of Clare will battle it out on the GOP ticket for the nomination to fill the place of retiring State Senator Ben Carpenter of Harrison.

At least eight veterans are seeking county offices, three on the Democratic ticket and five on the GOP ballot. They are: E. Moore, incumbent, and Robert F. Neafie are unopposed for the Republican and Democratic nominations, respectively, for Prosecuting Attorney. Reginald J. Sheehy is the lone Democratic aspirant for Sheriff, while Emery Craft and Wm. F. Golinick are the Republican candidates for the office being vacated by Sheriff John A. Papendick. John L. Selesky's name will appear on the Republican ticket, but he has withdrawn from the race due to the Liquor Commission ruling that he would have to give up his store's beer and wine takeout license in case of his election.

Besides McDonnell running for the Democratic nomination, three others are seeking the County Clerk office on the GOP ballot: Ray F. Clement, Willard F. Harwood and Leo E. Loveley.

Lone Candidate

James Post, former County Treasurer before entering the armed forces during World War II, is the only candidate for the office. He is a Democrat.

Fred Niederer, incumbent, and Joseph F. Lennert are seeking the GOP nomination for Register of Deeds. There are no Democratic candidates.

Alfred J. Sorenson, Republican, is the only candidate for Coroner. In addition to the previous offices, the city electors will name ten persons to the GOP County Convention and four to the Democratic conclave. Each township will name three to the GOP County rally and two to the Democratic County meeting.

Recreation Program Off To Good Start

The first week of playground activity resulted in good response at both school and city, only mediocre attendance at the City Park. Remember, kids, about every game that you like to play is available at the park, and they're getting more acquainted as possible. No girls have come to the park as yet—croquet, volleyball, and other games are primarily for you. Let's get a bunch together and come on out. Each Monday and Wednesday evening at 6:30, Mr. Cornell will be at the park to give his assistance to the boys who make up the Grayling football, basketball and track teams of the future. This is a good opportunity for all you fellows to get a little coaching before the season starts.

The continued cold weather is delaying our swimming plans to a certain extent, but we still hope to begin during the latter part of this month. Watch the Avalanche for the opening date.

Saturday afternoon the Boy Scouts went on a swimming hike to the Pullover—all of them insist (with chattering teeth) the water was fine. All Scouts, note—expect to have an intensive program during the next three months. There will be a campfire meeting each Thursday night at 7:00 and something special for each Saturday. Our advancement drive begins Thursday night—every boy should be a first-class by the time school opens. Final camp plans will also be discussed Thursday—see you then.

GRANGE NOTES

There will be a deputy conference of the Grange in Grayling, June 18-19. The State Master, W. G. Armstrong, and Dr. Sheets, adviser to the National Master, are expected as speakers for the June 18, evening meeting. The public is invited. The time will be 8 o'clock. Entertainment will be furnished by the Grange.

The Lakeside Drive Club held its final meeting of the season, Tuesday. Mrs. Elmer Birdsall was hostess to the group.

VETERANS

From the OFFICE OF VETERANS' AFFAIRS

LANING
Veterans Who Entered School at Own Expense Will Be Reimbursed

Veterans who entered school at their own expense while they were on terminal leave or while they were hospitalized and awaiting discharge before December 28, 1945 may receive refunds for tuition, books and supplies under a Veterans Administration procedure announced this week.

No provision was made for such cases in the original GI Bill passed in June, 1944. But the amended GI Bill approved December 28, 1945, did cover them.

Under the procedure set up by VA, refunds will be handled through the VA regional office having jurisdiction over the area in which each veteran lives. VA will pay the refunds to the educational institution after it has reimbursed him. The procedure follows:

Necessary Procedure
1. The veteran must obtain a certified statement from the school he attended, giving the period he was enrolled, the course of studies he pursued and the money he paid for tuition, books and supplies. The statement must indicate that the institution has reimbursed him for the money he spent.
2. The veteran must submit this certificate to the VA regional office in his area. If he was on terminal leave at the time, he must include a photocopy of the service order placing him on terminal leave. If he was hospitalized, he must include a statement by the proper official of the station, post or hospital in which he was receiving treatment, including information as to the date of his discharge, or, if he still is hospitalized, of the probable discharge date. Whether he was on terminal leave or whether he was hospitalized, he must include an official VA application for education or training in event he has not already filed one.

Voucher Required
3. The institution must submit to the same regional office a public voucher covering the amount refunded to the veteran. VA explained it can make refunds only if the institution in which the veteran was enrolled had been approved by the appropriate state agency. The money refunded must not exceed the amount which VA would have authorized for education or for training under instruction in effect during the period for which the veteran is asking reimbursement. Since the GI Bill as amended by Public Law 268, a serviceman otherwise eligible for benefits may apply for training and enter a school as he is on terminal leave or while he is hospitalized pending discharge. The school then can bill VA for his expenses along with those of other veterans-students. However, he can not receive subsistence allowance while on terminal leave or hospitalized VA said.

JINX FALKENBERG and her husband, Tex McCrary, are doing such an outstanding job on their husband-and-wife radio program that it's too bad they're not on a coast-to-coast hookup. Maybe NBC will do something about it; now they're just on the New York station, WEAT. Recently they did their broadcast from a plane that hovered over New Jersey and Connecticut while they talked. Jinx, who's forsaken the movies at least until the stork arrives, looked lovely in a coral-colored coat, with a twist of colored stuff in her hair. McCrary's newspaper experience, plus his work during the war, add tremendously to the value of their program, of course.

For his starring role in RKO's "Nocturne" George Raft will have the benefit of advice from one of Broadway's most famous detectives, Barney Ruditsky. Producer Joan Harrison, a stickler for realism, wants Raft to be an authentic replica of a real detective, not one of those unbelievable creatures we often see on the screen. Ruditsky worked on cases involving famous gangsters for 20 years.

The National Barn Dance originates from McLeansboro, Ill., Saturday, June 8, when the gang joins the American Legion in a national homecoming celebration for National Comdr. John Stelle, which will end with an old-fashioned barbecue at midnight.

Bob Burns had to turn down an invitation to head the Hoboes' Association of America, but he does hold a life membership card in the association, having fulfilled the two big requirements — hoboeing in every state of the union and totaling 100,000 miles.

Barbara Jo Allen, who created the man-chasing "Vera Vague" and then turned "Vera" into a dramatic star on a recent CBS "This Is My Best" broadcast, creates still another character in the picture, "Earl Carroll's Sketchbook," now in production. In the movie she portrays a wise-cracking designer, but one who has no designs on any man!

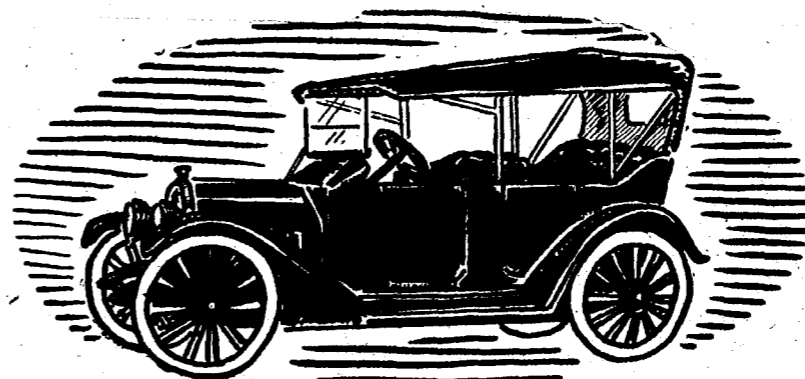

Parks Johnson and Warren Hull will return from vacation with a new sponsor, broadcasting "Vox Pop" at a new time — they'll replace the CBS "Inner Sanctum." Meanwhile Parks is resting on his Texas ranch, and Hull's doing some experimental television shows.

That Hollywood smallpox scare sort of wrecked Alan Hale. His vaccination not only took hold of his left arm, it took a bit of the arm with it, leaving quite a wound. Hale was temporarily out of the "Cheyenne" cast.

ODDS AND ENDS—Producer Seymour Nebenzal discovered, in searching for a fat Chinaman to play a heavy in "The Chase," that there's a shortage of them, so—he's changed the script and is testing obese Chinese women.

Reese Taylor, of "Young Dr. Malone," has been in radio 14 years, but he still suffers badly from mike fright. . . . Tex Beneke and the Glenn Miller band have ten network wires weekly now; they're featured on "Minties at Meadowbrook" Saturdays, in addition to night-time programs. . . . FOR EXCHANGE: 1913 Model—will trade even for 1946 Super Deluxe

What an ad! Not a taker in a million. Only a politician would think of such a deal!

Yes, Senators Wagner, Murray, and Representative Dingell are trying to exchange an out-worn system of National Compulsory Government Health Insurance for the new Voluntary Non-Profit Health Programs which are succeeding so admirably in America.

They offer an old lamp for a new one but their name isn't Aladdin.

The National Health Act of 1945 known as the Wagner-Murray-Dingell Bill is now under consideration before the United States Congress. If your Congressman doesn't vote "No" on this bill, you will lose the non-profit Michigan Medical Service, the non-profit Michigan Hospital Service and similar health service plans now being used by millions of people in Michigan. These modern and voluntary programs will be replaced by foreign-born National Compulsory Health Insurance plan that will place another 3% tax on your paycheck and give you only limited health service — after you pay for 18 months.

Would you trade a 1946 Super Deluxe for the Montana Senator's 1915 relic?

Would you trade a non-profit voluntary plan that paid $90,000,000 for patients' hospital bills in 1945 for a National Compulsory Insurance plan that doesn't even specify what amount of service the tax payer will receive?

Would you trade a valuable bird in the hand for a squawking noise in the bush?

Write your Congressman and urge him to vote "NO" on the Wagner-Murray-Dingell Bill.

CHAPTER XXVII

"I'm a collector of fine horses, my boy. That's the second one I've acquired this afternoon. Hop up on her now, son, and ride her over to my stables."

Mr. Greenway limped over to the filly. Rob caught Ken's arm and showed him the check. It was made out to Kenneth McLaughlin, and the amount was five thousand dollars. Ken looked up at his father. Rob McLaughlin's big white teeth were flashing in a wide and joyful grin. "That does it, Ken!" he exclaimed. But Ken could only stare at his father's face, then at the check, and feel dazed.

Greenway called to Ken, "Take a last ride on her, son."

Touch and Go's face was turned eagerly toward Ken as he walked to her. A sudden reluctance made his feet heavy—last ride!

He smoothed her face. His father and Greenway stood beside her, talking. "Good girl," murmured Ken, "you did it, baby."

It was a marvel, certainly, what she had done. Without any fuss about it, she had just always done as she was taught to do and done it with all her heart. And she had it in her, that speed and power, as if she had been Flicka—Flicka, with the four beautiful legs she had had before he, Ken McLaughlin, had brought her in off the range and named her—but, too, with the sweetness and docility that she had only acquired through her suffering.

"Good girl," he murmured again, and turned his face down against the filly's head that was gently snuggling at him. Then he put it into Swedish, "my flicka."

Perry Gunston drew the blanket off Ken's shoulders and rode her slowly toward the Grayling stables.

"Are you awake, Thunderhead?" It was a soft whisper from Ken, who had spent the night on a blanket at the edge of Thunderhead's stall.

The stallion did not move. He was standing with his head out the upper half of the stable door. But one ear flicked back and Ken rose to his feet and went to the door and folded his arms over the top of it, close by Thunderhead's head.

Thunderhead's head, outside the light grew stronger. It was nearly dawn.

Ken thought over all that had happened and all that was going to happen. He and his father and Thunderhead were starting back to the ranch this day. Then Thunderhead would be gelded—plenty of money now to have Doc Hicks come to the ranch and do it—and then he would be sold to the army for a band horse. They brought the most money of all, his father had said, more than the army paid for ordinary horses. He might bring as much as three hundred dollars. White horses for cavalry bands were not easy to find.

Ken stared out at the dim shapes of stables and trees while he thought of Thunderhead carrying a bandman in a band. He had seen those bands in the parades at the Post. Thunderhead was a big husky—he might carry the kettledrums.

Kettledrums? Cavalry bands! The drummer's arms—and big sticks—were a crisis—pounding the drums—putting on a clown act. And the huge glittering horns, the fancy uniforms, the smart drum major, the deafening blare of band music! Thunderhead—the big show-off—prancing in the middle of it!

Ken thought suddenly of getting on Thunderhead and running away with him. Turn him loose somewhere. Giving him away.

When they were getting ready to load the stallion, Ken asked, "Dad, is the reason you've got to geld him because you can't get rid of him unless you do?"

"Bright boy!" said Rob sarcastically. Then he put his hand on Ken's shoulder. "It's not the money, Ken—not any more, although three hundred dollars isn't to be sneezed at. But it's really because there's no other way to save Banner and to save myself, incidentally, from having to adopt about thirty wild mares."

Before eight o'clock they had the stallion in the trailer and had started the long drive back to the ranch.

The eagle headed into the strong westerly wind and hung on motionless wings high over the valley.

The "easterlies" had blown itself out and no sign of it remained except for patches of snow under the trees and in the depressions of the hills. Here was summer again, Indian summer, with the quaking asp a riot of crimson and ochre and the cottonwoods shedding golden leaves on the surface of the river.

The eagle saw the mares and colts grazing, saw something large and white moving through the pass in the rampart and slipped sideways to pose himself directly over it.

Ken McLaughlin was leading his stallion through the keyhole. As they emerged on the threshold of the valley they halted. The horse was saddled with the small horsehair saddle Ken had made himself. Underneath the bridle was a heavy chain halter and lead, and over his eyes a blindfold, but in spite of this he knew where he was and his body was tense, and fierce snorting breaths came from his nostrils.

He pawed the earth. With one hand Ken unclipped the girth, lifted the saddle off and dropped it on the ground. The glint of his sun on steel stirrups struck the eagle's eyes, and a sudden lift of his body registered the reaction. Again he spread his wings wide, circled and centered over the pass.

Ken undid the latch of the throat strap, talking softly to his horse.

"You don't know it, Thunderhead, but this is good by . . . you've got to go to your mares and take care of them and live a stallion's life . . . you're a true throwback, Thunderhead . . . you're not a race horse though you can go like the wind when you want to . . . and you're not an army horse prancing around carrying a kettledrum . . . you've got to go back . . . and I've got to go to school and do a lot of other things . . . so . . . we . . . can't be together any more."

Thunderhead's hoof dug impatiently at the earth. Ken slid his arm up underneath the stallion's neck and laid his own head against it. His voice went on while his fingers drew off the bridle, the chain halter, and at last the blindfold. "Don't forget me, Thunderhead . . . I won't forget you . . . never, Thunderhead."

Ken stepped back, the stallion was free, and he knew it. He took a step forward, switching his tail. His head was high, his ears alert, his eyes roved over the valley. It was as if he counted every mare and up from the passage. And as earth and rocks settled back again, the valley was filled with detonations, caroming back from the hills. Last of all came a deep rumble from the Thunderer.

After some minutes Ken entered the passage to see exactly what had happened to the keyhole. It no longer existed. Just as he had planned, the support for the boulder had been blasted away, and with its fall, all the other boulders had found a new position. There were some cranialles a cat or a small dog could have crawled through, but for Thunderhead the passage was closed for all time.

Ken retraced his steps, ran along the rampart until he came to the place Thunderhead had made the trail to the summit, and climbed up.

There was excitement amongst the mares over the blasting. Thunderhead was nowhere to be seen. Ken lay down, hanging his head over the edge, certain that the horse was below there, pawing at those stones, investigating every cranny, discovering that there would be no more going in and out of the valley. At least, thought Ken, not from this end. You might be able to find a way out the other end, old fellow, through those valleys and mountain passes and glaciers, but it would be a hundred miles around for you to get home, and all of it strange going—no—I think you'll stay in—

And then it was as if his father's fiery, commanding eyes were suddenly looking into his, and he spoke to them, "I've done it, dad. He won't come back to bother you any more. Or to kill Banner."

His father—it was a warm and happy thing to remember how his father had looked at him and spoken to him and squeezed his shoulder even at that moment of disturbance getting ready to take his mother to the hospital. And the friendly words, "If you think you can do it, son, I'll leave it to you. I don't want to shoot your horse or geld him." And his mother had slipped her arm around his neck and kissed him and said, "I hope your fingers crossed, darling, you want a little flicka, don't you? And Ken—thanks to you and Touch and Go, I'm going away with out the slightest worry about expenses—and I shall send out from the hospital and order a new negligee! Velvet! With feathers!"

Thunderhead came out from under the rampart at a gallop and rushed back to his mares. Ken leaped to his feet. What would he do now? What did he think about the blocked passage?

Thunderhead was heading away from this end of the valley as if that gunpowder were behind him. He began to round up his mares.

Ken watched it for the last time, the weaving in and out, the snaking head, the plunges of the mares as they felt the stallion's teeth in their haunches.

The daylight was fading. Ken had to strain his eyes to see how every mare and colt was gathered up and swept into that rushing charge of pounding bodies and sweeping hair and flying limbs.

Wild exultation filled the boy. He had done it, after all. He had given back the mares to his horse! And this round-up! And a thousand others like it—and the valley and the snow-peaks and the river—

That other life he had tried to give Thunderhead—the life of a race horse—how desperately he had prayed for it! He felt almost bewildered. For all his prayers had been denied and all his efforts frustrated, and yet this—this—was the answer.

The boy's head lifted and his eyes flashed from crest to crest.

All the world was beginning to glow with the sunset. Three cream-colored antelopes were drinking at the edge of the river. The river was emerald green and turquoise blue and rose pink and there was a big golden star in it. Yellow light swept eastward from the sunset in long, level shafts. A half moon, lying on its back, began to glow like a lamp.

All this for Thunderhead! Thunderhead floated past the band of mares that now, in the gathering darkness, seemed like a swift-moving blot of shadow, and took the lead.

Ken strained his eyes to see the last of that rushing white form. Here it was, now, the parting. He put up his hand and brushed warm tears from his cheeks, surprised to find them there, because, in spite of the loneliness and the sense of bitter loss, it was as if the beauty of the valley and the gloriousness of Thunderhead's freedom were inside him too.

And now they were gone. In the deep breath that Ken drew, there was the wideness and the emptiness of the world.

It was time, and more than time, for Ken to go. Flicka was waiting. Once again it was just himself and Flicka, as it had been before Thunderhead, before Touch and Go. He ran down the trail, packed up, mounted, and was off.

The eagle hung in the sky where the daylight still lingered, watching all that the boy did. When he had gone, the great bird dropped slowly down over that pile of boulders which had suddenly changed its shape.

He hovered, examining, estimating the difference. At last he swept up into the sky again, and his harsh, lonely cry, "Kark!—Kark!—Kark!" floated over the sound waves that played across the valley, spending themselves in inaudible ripples against the mountainsides.

(THE END)

HERE'S TO HEALTH

Appendicitis

There are stomachaches and stomachaches. Some are the "green apple" type—indigestion due to unwise eating, which may pass away without serious consequences. Others may warn of grave stomach disturbances, such as ulcers. Still others may not really be stomachaches at all but pain caused by inflammation of the appendix. The appendix is a small structure located on the right side of the lower abdomen, which is of no use to man. If it becomes infected, a condition known as appendicitis results. Appendicitis causes severe pain which is usually first noticed not where the appendix is located, but in the upper abdomen. The pain is usually accompanied by nausea and fever and the right side of abdomen becomes tender.

While appendicitis may be either chronic or acute, the latter is more common and almost always necessitates an operation. The operation to remove the diseased appendix is called an appendectomy, which greatly endangers life.

If appendicitis is suspected, the doctor should be called immediately. Meanwhile, the patient should be kept quiet. He should not be given anything to eat or drink, not even water, and above all things he should not be given a laxative. A laxative, which may be helpful in a case of a plain stomachache, can prove fatal in case of appendicitis.

With appendicitis, never apply a hot water bottle to soothe the pain. If the pain is so acute that the patient must have relief, an ice pack may be applied until the doctor arrives, makes a diagnosis and recommends treatment.

No home remedies, certainly not rubbing the stomach, should be tried in case of appendicitis. There are only two things to do—get the patient to lie quietly and call the doctor. The doctor will make certain tests to determine if the pain is due to appendicitis and, if so, whether an operation is necessary. There is no reason to be alarmed about an appendectomy. It is one of the most common of all operations and, if performed in time, is usually successful.

Mass X-ray to find unknown cases of tuberculosis will be discussed in the next article.

More Cousins
Children of first cousins are second cousins to one another and children of second cousins are third cousins to one another. When the descent occurs only on one side the "removal" occurs. For example, if A and B are first cousins, A's child and B's first cousins once removed and A's grandchild and B's first cousins twice removed. A's children and B's children would be second cousins to each other.

More Foolishness

The tearing up of a wild flower in the forest and placing it in a vase where it might only keep its color for a short space of time, then into the garbage can or dump with it, compares with the start Monday at the Grayling Army Air Field with the dismantling of 185 huts.

Here was without doubt the finest airport in the State of Michigan for the training of the National Guard Air Corps which is to be formed. The buildings were ideal for the use of such troops and in the winter when not used by the flyers would have been ideal for the use of winter sports enthusiasts who swarm to Grayling but can find no housing facilities.

Clarence "Johnny" Johnson, Royale Wright and Mayor George Burke worked with an intensity born of the hope of helping the community in an effort to save the field as it was, for the use of the State Guard Flyers and housing of the huge winter sports crowd. It appears that somewhere along the line that loathsome object politics entered the picture. We don't know where to place the blame but—we will be seeking out that information.

The buildings which will salvage at a low percentage will be taken to Cadillac, Ludington and South Haven where they will undoubtedly be used for a short time and then junked. They will be out of place in the before-mentioned cities but were ideally located on our airport.

The Grayling American Legion Post has requested a chance to buy one of mess halls and equipment, but, the answer will probably be that some big city veteran needs a dishwasher and meat block and some of the other equipment which would certainly be out of place in a private home.

Conservationists in northern Michigan are agitating a change for the trout season whereby the opening date would be May 15 and the closing date Sept. 15. Arguments: A later opening date would coincide with the pike season; most trout violations occur prior to May 15 and are committed by hungry pike fishermen; the later closing date would help the tourist industry.

Frank Davis, secretary of the East Michigan Tourist association, confided to us his favorite recipe for cooking perch. It's this: Soak the perch over night in a raw batter, well seasoned with salt. Frank proved his point by taking us to lunch at Bay City last week. Yes, the perch were marvelous!

Be easy on the weatherman. June is the wettest month of the year in Michigan, average 3.56 inches of rain. Sunshine should prevail 65 per cent of the time. Slickest political slogan of 1946: Remember VJ-Day on June 26. At last, friends of Vern J. Brown think so. California is trying to lure Michigan underpaid rural and village teachers with offers of $2,100 to $2,400 contracts. The quotation is from a newspaper advertisement.

Poison Ivy Off List

Science has happy tidings this Summer for American vacationists allergic to that "Dracula" of summer vegetation known as poison ivy. The good news comes in the form of a new war-born chemical called 2,4-D (Dichlorophenoxyacetic acid), now available to operators of vacation playgrounds and owners of summer homes and camps.

When sprayed on poison ivy plants, this new running mate of the other new chemical wonder DDT, will render the obnoxious weed totally harmless. The nasty stuff collapses soon after spraying as the chemical penetrates to the very roots of the plant and actually strangles it to death. Experiments conducted by scientists show that 1,600 square feet of a weed infested area can be covered with approximately $1.00 worth of chemical 2,4-D. Each year additional thousands who have never contracted poison ivy before find themselves no longer immune; therefore cutting or pulling the plants and roots out by hand is a chance not worth taking. It has also been proved that ivy poisoning may be contracted merely by contact with smoke from fires in which the plants are being burned. Killing them by spraying not only is much simpler and more effective but eliminates any danger of a person's becoming sensitized. Once the ivy poisoning enters the blood stream the victim is usually faced with six more years of summer misery before it "burns" itself out. Merely being near the plant growth, even without actual contact, often causes a recurrence, according to published case histories.

To the Citizens of Crawford County:

Do to a ruling by the State Liquor Commission which makes it illegal for a public officeholder to be either directly or indirectly interested in an establishment which holds a license from that body, I have decided to withdraw from the primary race for the office of Sheriff of Crawford County in order that I might continue services to the customers of the Cash and Carry Grocery Store.

In that our store holds a takeout license for beer and wine, it was necessary for me to make a choice between running for the office of Sheriff and my business.

I wish to take this opportunity to thank all of my friends who urged me to make the race and circulated my nomination petition. Their interest and friendship will not be forgotten, also all of the rest of my friends who pledged to support me at the polls.

Sincerely,

JOHN SELESKY.

TRUMAN ENTERTAIN PAGE BOYS . . . Ninety page boys of the senate and house were guests of President and Mrs. Truman. The boys were brought to the east wing of the White House where they met the President and First Lady of the Land, then they were escorted through the White House by their host and hostess. Here are the Trumans with the future senators and representatives during their recent visit to the White House. They represented every state in the Union.

is high and more than the usual number of eyes are scanning lake and stream waters, the conservation department's fish division gets reports of sea serpents, sea monsters and whales. Swimmers from coastal states swear they saw shark fins cutting the water.

The division is happy to get the reports, for every report, reduced from fantastic to everyday language, is one more encouraging bit of evidence that sturgeon are making progress in their long comeback from near extermination.

June is sturgeon spawning time, and early vacationers sometimes see in shallow waters the big fish that will spend the rest of the season feeding deep on the lake bottoms. The frightening commotion sturgeon make when they beat the water to foam with their rolling, fisheries men explain, is a simple maneuver the big fish have for shaking off parasitic sea lampreys.

Sturgeon have been protected for 17 years in Michigan, since 1929, but one starting from the egg at that time would still be a mere youth, with three to eight years to go before his first spawning and the prospects of 80 or more years of life ahead of him. Prize recent specimen taken was one injured by a boat propeller off the mouth of St. Joseph river in Lake Michigan in 1943. It weighed 310 pounds, measured 7 feet 11 inches.

Before their value for steaks and caviar was realized, sturgeon were stacked on beaches like cordwood and burned, because of the damage they did to nets. From 1880 to 1900 Michigan commercial fishermen took a million pounds of sturgeon annually. By 1929 this catch was down to 7,000 pounds. Now only Ontario, among the states bordering the Great Lakes, permits the taking of this old species, which is a carryover from prehistoric times.

Among encouraging signs of the slow sturgeon come-back are the number taken in commercial fishermen's nets, particularly at the south end of Lake Huron, and the number of young ones taken at dams when game fish are transferred by dipnetting. The few kept in fish hatchery ponds to keep the bottoms clean and for display purposes are changed occasionally, as they grow excessively thin on the pond bottom diet.

Fire Fighters At Higgins Lake

Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota—the "lakes states"—were joint hosts to 90 forest fire organization officials from the central, eastern and southern states June 10, 11 and 12 at the Michigan conservation department's Higgins Lake Training school.

Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio; New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland and the District of Columbia; and Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana and Georgia will be represented. After the three-day inspection of Michigan-developed tools, the forest fire men will go to Tomahawk, Wisconsin, for three days' demonstration of specialized Wisconsin and Minnesota equipment.

Tools developed especially for fighting Michigan forest fires that will be demonstrated include the big plogs, jet wells, sand-slinging trenchers, pumpers, lights for night fighting and the radio network. This was the first of a projected series of conferences at which forest fire men may improve methods in their own states by seeing what may be adapted from the specialized equipment of other states and regions.

Bird Society View Forest Rarity

Sixty of the 200 members of the Michigan Audubon Society meeting at the conservation department's Higgins Lake training school found the Kirtland warblers they were searching for in Au Sable state forest southeast of Lovells, but a nuptial performance by spruce grouse, a bird rarely seen south of the Straits, stole the show.

Quite indifferent to the close shoulder-to-shoulder, birds turned about him, and to the constant

WATCH YOURSELF

CHECK YOUR DRIVING.

CHECK YOUR CAR.

CHECK ACCIDENTS!

This is the slogan used by the International Association of Chiefs of Police in their 1946 Traffic Safety Check, beginning May 15, when police officers in the United States and Canada will check the brakes, lights, tires, windshield wipers and horns of motor vehicles. Last year 28,500 lives were lost, and a million persons were injured, in automobile accidents. This frightful toll can be stopped, the police assert, when all motorists drive safely and carefully in cars that are safe.

Cemetery Notes

We have but very few orders for the rebuilding of lots, inasmuch as the City is now selling lots in the Green Lanes we have completed since we started operations. They are very attractive lots and sell readily, especially as they are sold under perpetual care.

Mrs Clara Sorenson, in mailing us a check for the care of the Atkinson lot, remarks: "You have made such a fine improvement at the Cemetery that it is worth the fee to have the care you are giving to the lots. A like letter of appreciation has been received from Mr and Mrs Lew Martin.

We have on file many such letters and to publish them all would take up too much valuable space in the Avalanche. Mr Robert Strong, owner and publisher of our local paper, has been more than liberal in publishing our articles each week gratis. He has given our Committee every possible co-operation.

We would appreciate any suggestions you might have to offer which would aid us in our work, and would be appreciated. Likewise, any criticism.

Respectfully submitted,
Cemetery Committee.

They noticed the car back door wasn't closed tightly, and as the driver, Miss Ruth Tobola, was slowing up to allow them to close it, the little girl, who was dressing in the back seat, attempted to close it before the car stopped. The wind caught the opened door throwing her to the pavement. She was lacerated about the face and a 3-inch gash was cut in her back, requiring three stitches.
